The Parish Prison Raided-No Great Resistance Offered By Officials -The Assassination of Hennessy Supposed to Be Avenged.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Public inyesterday afternoon and last night, when news of the virtual acquittal of murder of Chief of Police Hennessy spread from the court room. Loud and open threats of summary vengeance were heard on all sides, but it was not until one hundred of the leading citizens attached their names to a call for a mass meeting that the public felt that the administration of justice might come from the enraged people. Anger, already hot, was heated to the white pitch by the sight of bunting streaming

Computation as to the size of the throng was impossible. While decency and good or-der prevailed, the hum of voices drowned whatever of formality there may have been in the proceedings and soon after the hour for the meeting the crowd, yelling with excitement, started for the parish prison. What happened there is quickly told. The murderers of Chief Hennessy were disposed of. They are: Manuel Polietz, Pietro Mastero, Antonio Scaffedi, Joseph P. Macheca, Antonio Marchesi, Antonio Bagnettc Frank Romero, Jim Cruso, Rocco Gerachi, Charles Trahine, Ten o'clock had not yet struck and a vast multitude was already congregated on Canal street, almost filling up the large space from curb to curb on each side of the boulevard. Just at the street and a number of gentlemen, among whom were Mr. W. S. Parkerson, Mr. J. C. Wickliffe and others who signed the call came marching along and began walking round and round the railing of the Clay monument.

There were fully 3,000 people within car-shot and more could be seen struggling, pushing and running here and there on neutral ground. Street cars were unable to pass through. Carriages, earts, wagons, cabs and vehicles of all descriptions were halted. Mr. Parkerson spoke first. He said that once before he had appeared before the people, in grand mass meeting assembled to discuss matters vital to the interest of the community. And again he faces the people of New Orleans to denounce the most infamous act which was consequent upon the most revolting crime in the criminal annals of any community. That act was the finding of the jury in the murder trial yesterday, and that crime was, as everybody knows, the foul assassination of the chief of police. "I desire neither fame, nor name, nor glory," said Mr. Parkinson. "I am a plain American citizen, and as such and as a good citizen, I am here." After the speeches the indignant citizens, about 2,000 in number, started for the parish prison, which they reached at 10:30 o'clock. After slight resistance the jail was surrendered. The citizens rushed in and killed eleven of the nineteen men who had been indicted for the assassination of Chief of Police Hen-

The large crowd in front of the court building hooted at the jury as it left the courthouse, and the jurors seemed very much frightened by the popular mani-festations against them. The excitement grew stronger all day, as much against the jury as against the prisoners.

The Maria is not confined altogether to New Orleans. It is an organization made up for the most part of Sicilians, although not a few Italians are members of it. It is a terrible vendetta that regards murder as a duty. Nearly every large city has its Mafia society, Nearly every large city has its Mana society, but the organization at New Orleans was the most powerful in the country previous to the killing of Chief Hennessy. The chief of police was by no means its first victim. There were scores of others from 18% until this time that gave up their lives to the cruel Sicilians. First came a caution and then a threat. These threats were always carried into execution. The watchword of the organization was: "The Matia never falls."
Chief Hennessy had been warned repeatedly, but he laughed away the fears of his friends and went boldly on in the discharge hend his murderers. Numbers of the real-dents of the Italian quarter were locked up, but many of them were subsequently re-leased. A shotgun that brought Chief Hen-nessy to his denth was found, but no Madan could be identified as its owner. Magan could be identified as its owner. The killing of the chief plunged the city of New Orleans in gloom and the good classes were brought to a realization of the fearful state of affairs that surrounded them. Even after the chief's death threats of further bio dy deeds were made freely and all if rts of the police to locate the leaders of the society were fruitless. This marticleus ability to defy detection is due to the telous ability to defy detection is due to the rules of iron that control the order. In the lowest grade the members know no one but a sub-leader. These sub-leaders know the one from whom they receive their orders, but they do not know each other unless chance bring them together in the perpetralon of their crimes. The story of how the Mafia was brought to an end in Sicily, the birthplace of the organ-ization, is particularly interesting in view of the developments here to-day. The band had grown so powerful and so merciless in 1890 that the Italian government saw the necessity of taking a hand against the mur-derers. An order was issued to arrest every suspicious character on the island, and in the leading Italian cities. About 5,000 were the leading Italian cities. About 5,000 were locked up within two weeks. They were kept for six months, in which time the authorities collected evidence diligently. When any evidence sufficient to convict was found, the culprit was at once taken out and shot. Those who were convicted were released, but kept under close surveillance and if any new evidence appeared that warranted an execution not time was lost to continue.

The speaker disavowed sympathy with the vendetta, but insisted on right and asked why the New Orleans authorities allowed Parkerson to assemble thorities allowed Parkerson to assemble and barangue and barangue there."

At New Orleans it is now estimated that between $75,000 and $100,000 was raised to secure the acquittal of the eleven men who were so quickly dealt with when they had been acquitted and it is certain that so large a sum could not have been raised in that city alone, though all the Italians in the city are said to have been taxed, the taxation extending even to the lowest laborers, who were assessed $2 each.

The money could not have all been raised by the Italians of New Orleans though, zealous as they have been in behalf of the assassins. Inquiries in other cities reveal that each furnished its share. Perhaps the heaviest assistance came from Philadelphia.

THE FEELING IN ITALY. ROME, March 16.-The news of the killings at New Orleans did not become stroke of the boulevard. Just at the stroke of 10 o'clock a shout went up from the people stationed at St. Charles sensation and the general feeling is one of the utmost indignation and thirst for reprisal in some form. An English visitor, who was mistaken for an American, had a narrow escape from being

It is expected that the subject will be brought up in the chamber of deputies. In the talk in the streets and in public places strong protests were uttered against any representation of Italy at the coming American exhibition.

Count Rapponi, of the Italian legation in Paris, expressed himself in very strong terms on what he called the cruel massacre of his countrymen. He said Italy could not afford to let such an outrage on humanity go without redress and that it was a stain on the name of the American people that could never be effaced. He added that in his personal opinion it ended all prospect of Italy taking part in the Chicago exhibition. The count was very excited.
